Profile

- Andrew completed a degree in Sport and Exercise Science in 2013. He has since completed a post graduate diploma in Sports Rehabilitation.
- Andrew started his career working alongside physiotherapists in a private practice. He was responsible for assessing and administering treatment and rehabilitation for acute and chronic injuries sustained through sport, work or as a result of degenerative conditions.
- He has experience of working closely with GP practices, assessing patients suitability for exercise on prescription and administering exercise interventions. These would include patients not just affected by musculoskeletal injury but also a host of medical conditions such as respiratory, neurological, diabetes etc.
- Andrew has worked as a case manager since 2015. He is experienced in assessing injured people who have sustained injuries in their work place, in the public sphere or as a result of road traffic accidents. He assesses injury impact paying great attention to recovery to date, treatment effectiveness/ delays, identifying gaps in treatment or additional treatment needs and assessing the impact on active daily living, social activities and work.
- Andrew is very experienced at working with NHS and private treatment providers to ensure effective treatment outcomes. He has an excellent knowledge of both practices.

Testimonial

"I find my work immensely rewarding as I take great satisfaction in helping a variety of individuals recover from injury, especially seeing the positive changes which occur from post incident to recovery."
